PRESS RELEASE

THE LANGHAM, LONDON ANNOUNCES A GRAND OFFER TO MARK ITS UNVEILING AFTER A MAJOR TRANSFORMATION – A THIRD NIGHT FREE.

The Langham, London has unveiled a substantial programme of restoration and refurbishment that has taken place over five years costing the remarkable sum of £80 million. Originally opened in 1865 as Europe's first Grand Hotel, the painstaking work on this iconic London landmark has created 380 luxurious guestrooms and suites, 15 function rooms, including the historic Grand Ballroom, new public areas and the dazzling Palm Court, famed as the place where the tradition of afternoon tea was born.

To mark the hotel's re-awakening and the occasion of its 144th anniversary on 10th June 2009, the date set for its grand gala celebration, this luxury London hotel is offering a complimentary night's accommodation in one of its new Grand Rooms. Guests will need to stay a minimum of two consecutive nights paying Best Available Rate to qualify, for stays between 1 May – 31 August 2009. Guests are also invited to mark the occasion with a complimentary glass of Champagne per person in Palm Court, home of afternoon tea since 1865.

This year, more than ever, guests are looking for real value, and this exceptional offer will entice guests to experience The Langham's impressive transformation. Comments Robert Touzel, the hotel's Director of Sales and Marketing.
